

REPUBLICANS SWEEP WILL COUNTY

Entire G. O. P. Ticket Elected In Decisive Democratic Defeat

Roaring through the political field like a veritable cyclone, the Republican election of the seven Will county candidates virtually routed the Democrats from every office that they held in the court house with the exception of the Recorder and the Circuit Clerk whose terms for three years have not expired.

One of the chief reasons for the unprecedented landslide of Republican ballots was that most of the precincts voted the Republican ticket straight.

When the election returns started trickling in the early part of Tuesday evening, indications pointed that the Republicans were steadily gaining and by midnight there was no doubt that the entire Democratic ticket had been routed out of Will County.

The tabulations of the returns through the county, show as follows: County Judge, Geo. L. Cowing, 26,508; Geo. N. Blatt, Dem., 19,480; County Clerk, Joseph Hartley, Rep., 23,730; H. Koerner, Dem., 22,637; Probate Judge, Fred R. Adams, Rep., 26,316; Wm. E. Austin, Dem., 21,359; Probate Clerk, Donald C. Lang, Rep., 24,680; John R. Barney, Dem., 19,979; Treasurer, James C. Bell, Rep., 26,889; Albert E. Kinson, Dem., 19,429; Sheriff, James O'Neill, Rep., 27,073; Emmitt McGuire, 19,774. County Superintendent of Schools, Louis F. Bottino, Rep., 28,109; Earl Francis Booth, Dem., 18,186.

State Senator: Richard J. Barr, Rep., 24,048; James R. Shaffer, Dem., 17,083. State Representatives, Warren L. Wood, Rep., 41,017; Lottie Holman O'Neill, 34,392; Joseph Sam Perry, Dem., 44,751.

The newly elected County Officers will take over the reins of office on December 5th.

Practically every precinct in the country towns went from two to one to three to one Republican. In Mokena, second precinct of Frankfort township, 316 straight Republican ballots were cast and only 107 Democratic with 129 split votes. The total votes cast in Frankfort township was approximately 1100 votes out of which there were better than 650 straight Republican ballots.

New Lenox also went Republican.

Rep. Automobile Caravan Tours Will County

Last Saturday a very colorful and impressive Republican automobile caravan in which about 70 cars were entered, toured the entire County of Will, bringing a Republican message to every township and village. The huge parade assembled at Mokena and from there proceeded to Frankfort, Lincoln Estates, Eastern end of Will County, back to Manhattan, Elwood, Wilmington, Braidwood, Lockport, and Plainfield and finally to Joliet where it broke up late in the evening.

This was about the first time in the history of Will County politics that such an impressive political caravan toured the entire county in one day.

In the evening, each car had colored flares and when they were lighted, made a pretty picture.

The effect of this demonstration was vitally reflected in the election returns Tuesday night.

Woman's Club Press Conference Very Instructive

Mrs. L. G. Bruder and Mrs. Chas. Nielsen accompanied Mrs. R. C. Hanum, Press and Publicity chairman of the club to the Press Conference under the auspices of the Chicago Tribune, Nov. 3 at 2 o'clock at the Medina Club in Chicago.

"Let's Tell The World" was the caption heading Mrs. Fred R. Lufkins remarks. Mrs. Lufkin is the Press and Publicity chairman of the general Federation. Let's Tell the world what 2 1-2 million women are doing. Effective publicity is one way to help promote good in the world, public interest molds opinion. We should arouse interest in the good we are doing.

The news service in woman's club work was established in 1918. It includes 48 states and 29 foreign countries. Releases go out to an unbelievably large number of publications. The club chairman is in a key position, she should be an educated, interested person. It is astonishing that "we get $25,000,000 worth of advertising."

Mr. Maurice T. Reilly spoke in welcome for Mr. Chesser M. Campbell Adv. Mgr. of the Chicago Tribune. He said the women folks have two newspaper interests, one, a professional interest, publicity; second a circulation interest in advertising. One woman is considered as valuable as 5 men as 85 per cent of given to women interests.

Mr. James F. Whitney, president of the Civic Opera Company arranged a surprise in a "Baratone" from his company.

All of this time Miss Betty Brown, club editor, Chicago Tribune, presided. She certainly distinguished herself in "What Price Glory?" with apologies to Lawrence Stallings, Mr. Henry Nathan directed the four scenes.

Drama with Mrs. Fred W. Waterman club president and all of the rest of the busy Board Members seeking a Press Chairman. The skit went off merrily and creditably.

This was followed by a Press school, community singing led by Frank Bennett of Music Festival fame. "What Makes Society News?" by India Moffett, Society editor, Chicago Tribune and other speakers with the never to be forgotten Gertrude Lawrence English comedian, the star in "Susan and God" at the Harris. Miss Lawrence was interesting and funny but all of the time she urged the women to stick to hard work saying her work is also "for a living" just as is ours and she said her work is very steady hard work.

We gathered there is much just work not star gazing or posing in the sky. Noel Coward said in Present Indicative that she is a grand person and Gertrude Lawrence is worth while.

Red Cross Roll Call Drive Will Start Today

Under the leadership of the new chairman, Mrs. Raymond McGuire, Mokena has completed plans to conduct the annual Red Cross Roll Call, starting Armistice Day and ending Thanksgiving.

For several years Mokena has contributed well to this most worthy cause, but this year because there is a Chapter here, 50 cents of each subscription will be sent to the National Headquarters, the remaining staying in the community to be used as the chapter finds it necessary. Also 50 per cent of all donations, less than the dollar membership fee will remain here also. In case of a membership donation more than one dollar, only 50 cents will be sent to Headquarters.

Those who have agreed to assist in the work this year, in making a house to house canvass of the village are the chairman, Mrs. McGuire, Mrs. Hugo Niethammer, Mrs. Anton Benson, Mrs. Ralph Cutler, Miss Adeline Semmler, Misses Dorothy Hall, Ada Semmler and Eileen Walsh.

Married 59 Years

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Lochbihler of Berwyn entertained the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Krusemark and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Whitlark and family at a dinner Sunday, Nov. 6th, the occasion being the 59th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Krusemark. A delicious dinner was served

Century of Progress Horticultural Exhibit Well Under Way

The Association of a Century of Progress Horticultural Exhibition was organized August 1936. Realizing those memorable days spent in creating floral settings, the finest man's mind could conceive, should not be in vain or just a memory. A group consisting of those who had participated at this interesting period, in Chicago history, were called together by Mrs. Wallace Butler Combs who at the time was State Garden chairman for the Illinois Federation of Women's clubs and who had the honor of being selected to serve as official hostess in the Horticultural Exhibition Section of A Century of Progress.

Mrs. Combs presented her plan to be used in the organization of the association to be open to membership to all who had an integral part and by virtue of service in garden construction, assistants or hostesses. These men and women have shown keen interest in wishing to perpetuate and commemorate one of the most interesting events to garden lovers.

The officers selected were: Mrs. Wallace B. Combs, Tinley Park, president; Mrs. Frank Lambert, vice president, 5445 W. Iowa St., Chicago; Mrs. Ralph Jaquith, 6649 Oneaga St., Chicago, Secretary.

Honorary membership: John Servas, now assistant to president of the Horticultural Exhibitors, New York Fair; August Hock, Frank K. Balthis, W. Mohr and Ramson Kennicott.

Advisory committee: Mrs. Richard Barr, Mrs. Walter Erickson, Mrs. A. Grinton, Mrs. Frederick Hill, Joliet; Mrs. Fred Waterman, Mrs. J. P. Edwards, Mrs. A. H. Johnson, Mrs. Roland Foster, Mrs. Jos. Worker, Mr. Aug. Luecker, Mrs. Thos. Glendon, Mrs. Albert Sayers, Mrs. Jas. Oliver, Mrs. Walter Harmsdorf, Chicago; Mrs. Hugh McKenzie, Round Lake; Mrs. Ransom Kennicott, Desplaines.

As the membership covers a wide area it will be operated in Divisions. Mr. Frank Balthis and Mr. Wm. Mohr, Horticulturalists in Garfield Park Conservatory, will have charge of the men's division and receive enrollments.

There will be two meetings a year in some lovely garden to the mid-winter meet to be held in some hotel in the loop at which time necessary business will be transacted. "The object of the Association to stimulate Horticulture in every form and at any opportunity afforded as individuals and organization, as well as to perpetuate and commemorate A Century of Progress in Horticulture."

There will be no dues, no complex by-laws to worry over for sometime to come. The 1938 meet was held on Saturday, October 15, when a Harvest Breakfast arranged by Division No. 3 was served at 12:30 at "Brookwood" home of Mrs. Geo. Ward, at 123rd and Keane Ave., Palos Park. Following the breakfast Mrs. Ward who won a Silver Cup award for her original Herb Garden in Horticultural Hall, 1933, gave a talk on "Herbs" as used a century ago. She was in costume, lavender and old lace. Mr. Chas. Fiories of Prairie View, winner of the Gold Medal for his Italian Loggia and Geo. Abbott of Joliet who built the Hillside Garden were invited to speak.

at five o'clock by candle light, the center piece being a bowl of yellow roses and a large wedding cake decorated with yellow roses added an attractive touch to the table. The honored couple received many pretty flowers, cards and gifts.

Mokena WPA Projects Sleeping

Two years ago Mokena tried to get a WPA water main extension project thru, and after a long time of inactivity, it was found the project was in a pigeon hole in the WPA offices in Joliet. It was finally revived this summer and after promises were made that the project would be started this fall, it again is sleeping. A $58,000 village wide project was written up for the village the past summer, and no more has been heard about it. The Mokena village board has been told that one of the reasons for the apparent shelving of these projects is that there are too many Republicans in this section. Now the village board does not give a hang whether these projects are ever started.

"Who was George Eliot?" asked the duchess.

"His lordship's pet spaniel, your Grace," replied Bertram.

"So he was," mouthed the Count.

"To think I'd forgotten—"

"So what was?" said the Duchess.

Her victim clawed at the cloth.

"The dog, madam. The—"

"George Eliot was a female," said the Duchess.

And then, "What became of her . . . Brief? What became of Rudolf's pet spaniel . . . that never would let her master out of her sight?"

I shall always remember that moment that held so much and shall always see the three faces of those concerned. Old Harry's, keen and relentless, seemed cut out of painted stone; the Count's was a mask of wet gray, with lines that gave the impression of having been drawn with blue chalk; and Bertram's was tense and bloodless—the face of a man who is waiting to hear some monstrous suspicion smothered at birth.

Twice the Count tried to answer, and twice he failed.

At the third attempt—

"Madam," he croaked, "I have told you that my memory—"

"What became of George Eliot, steward?"

"His lordship shot her, your Grace, because she was going blind."

"Himself? His favorite dog?"

"He would let no one else do it, your Grace. And no one, except his lordship, knows where she lies."

The Duchess returned to the Count.

"D'you remember it now?"

Somehow the man made answer.

"I remember . . . that I shot her . . . myself."

Old Harry lunged.

"In that case, you can tell me her color."

The silence which succeeded this challenge dragged at the nerves, and I was really quite thankful when Virgil, in desperation, put in his oar.

"Madam, you are dealing with matters which my uncle has fought to forget."

Old Harry raised her eyebrows.

"That explanation is one which I am not prepared to accept. I'll tell you why. It's too easy. There's something very wrong here—and I'm very glad that I came." She turned to survey the oarsman.

"Why are you here?"

"Madam," said Virgil, "this was my father's home."

"I know that better than you. I ask you why you were here."

"I have no other home, madam."

"Indeed," said Old Harry. "Where is your father now?"

"My father," said Virgil, "is dead."

"When did he die?"

"At least ten years ago, madam."

"In that case he's been resurrected before this time. I must get into touch with him. I know he was living in London a year ago."

The Count of Brief leaned forward.

"Madam," he gasped, "this is very painful to me."

"Then it shouldn't be," said Old Harry.

"Mistakes have been made before now, and I'm not at all certain your brother wasn't an innocent man."

Virgil whipped into the breach, before the Count could reply.

"In that case, madam, there's only one thing to be done. May I have my father's address?"

"I'm afraid," said Old Harry, "your filial affection must wait. I'll deal with this matter myself. And when I have talked with your father, I'll let you know. I expect he, too, has fought to forget the past. But he may have been—less successful . . . However, we'll very soon know. I'll write to my agent tonight." She returned to the Count, whose head was shaking a little, as that of a very old man.

"He will ask your brother two questions, and send his answers to me. The first will be this—What was George Eliot's color?"

The Count half-rose from his chair.

"Madam, I protest."

"Protest all you like," said Old Harry.

"Whelp is not Whelp for nothing, and I was a friend of your father's before you were born."

"But what can that prove?" cried the Count.

"If he tells you George Eliot's color, what can that prove?" His voice rose into a scream, and he smacked the cloth. "That can prove nothing, madam . . . nothing at all—except that he can remember what I have contrived to forget," and with that, he sank back, breathing hard, with the air of a man who knows he has made a mistake and yet must needs go on, because he cannot retire.

"Quite so," said the Duchess, "quite so. But the second question will be much harder than that. Where is George Eliot buried?" She set her arm on the table and dropped her chin to her palm. "If he answers that, I think that that will prove something . . . and prove it up to the hilt."

I glanced at the Count.

The man was sitting up straight and was staring directly before him, but not at me. It was plain that his eyes saw nothing that eyes can see, that Apprehension possessed him, body and soul. And this, I think, was natural, for the Duchess had hit very hard. She had publicly forced the cupboard in which his skeleton stood and had hung the sword of vengeance over his head. And this, after 22 years . . .

The Count seemed to take hold of himself; a shiver ran through his limbs, and a hand went out to his wine; and then he was glancing about him, as though to take up his place. But the look on his face was haunted, and he might have been 20 years older than when he sat down.

In a silence which nobody cared him gave way . . . The rest, of course, was easy, but the Vicar continued to help till the work was done. Then at last he straightened his back, to find the other beside him, silk hat in hand.

"Sir," said the man, "I never can thank you enough. And since you have done me a service which I can never repay, I beg you will do me the honor to be my guest. I am to be married this day at half-past two, and I should not now be happy if you were not here."

"My very good friend," said the Vicar, inspecting his state, "you know very well that I am not fit to appear."

"That was true: he was not even wearing clerical dress."

"Whose fault is that?" said the other, and ushered him into his car . . .

"Now, though, for the moment, he did not know where he was, so was there—at the wedding. I saw them arrive."

"What of that?" said the Duchess. "He wasn't."

His eyes again fast on the Count—

"By heaven," said Herrick, "I don't believe that he was. And yet the bridegroom's name was Rudolf of Brief."

Two hours had gone by, and Winter was telling his tale. This in Herrick's room, the middle room of the tower. (This had not been a bedroom the week before: but now it was changed.)

"The first thing I knew, sir, a servant came running in, to say his lordship had fainted and his valet was wanted at once. Well, that told me you were off, and very soon after, Bertram the Steward comes in, as white as a sheet. He asks the older servants to come to his room, an' when he was gone, a footman begins to talk. I couldn't get all he said, but I made out her Grace an' Mr. Herrick 'ad put it across the Count. There's a chauffeur there speaks some English, and so I got on to him. 'What's the trouble?' I says. 'What's anyone done?' An' then he starts off . . .

"They've got this much clear, sir—that there was another brother an' he was a twin: that 'er Grace and Mr. Herrick keeps on referring to him: that his lordship keeps getting caught out, because he don't seem to see that they're mixing him up with his brother in all they say. But they can't understand why his lordship is so much upset. 'Why can't he see?' they keep asking. 'Why don't he tell them they're mixing him up with his twin?' Of course, the Steward's got it—'you ought to have seen his face. An' Mr. Parish has rammed a point or two home. But they all know there's something wrong, an' they all think her Grace has come here to put it right. It seems she said something like that. And they've got Mr. Herrick's story about the forgetful priest: they think that when he said 'Rudolf,' he must have meant 'Ferdinand.'"

"Oh, give me strength," said Herrick, and threw up his hands.

"If I may say so, sir, you haven't no call to complain. They've got the truth in their hands, but, except for the Steward, they're holding it upside down."

"And what will happen," said Herrick, "if ever they turn it round?"

"Shocked to death, sir," said Winter, "if you ask me. I think they'll walk out on him, sir, from bottom to top. They're a very 'ouse-proud lot. An' another thing—in their eyes her Grace can't do no wrong."

There was a little silence.

It was clear that he had won the first round, and won it well. It was also clear that Old Harry was going for a knockout, because the pace she had set could not possibly last—for one thing only, her threat to produce poor Gering was one which she could not fulfill. And again it was clear that Old Harry's judgment was good, because a win on points would be useless to us. The Count of Brief had to be floored—or be made to throw in the towel.

If he contrived to stand up for the first few rounds, the man was safe. I could not lose sight of one thing. And that was that he had a second who knew no law.

Indeed, this was how I saw it—that the Duchess of Whelp was fighting the Count of Brief, because the fall of the Count would set Elizabeth up; but Virgil was fighting his cousin, because, if he brought her down, the fall of the Count would not matter, because he—Percy Virgil—would then be bound to succeed.

to break, some dessert was served.

Then Old Harry spoke in German.

"John Herrick, relieve the tension. You know how to tell a good tale."

"Madam," said Herrick, "command me." He put a hand to his head. "A few minutes ago the conversation turned upon remembrance—a precious faculty. By that my story shall hang . . ."

(Here I should say that Herrick's story was heard by every soul in that room, for the Duchess had taken her spoon, yet did not begin to eat; and while we, at table, sat waiting for her to begin, the servants had nothing to do, because the course had been served.)

"There was once an English vicar, a very forgetful man. Now all of us sometimes forget. I forgot my pistol on Friday afternoon. But he was much worse than that. He would set forth to keep an engagement, and while he was on his way, forget why he had gone out. He would frequently enter a shop and, ere he was served, forget what he came in to buy. And sometimes in winter, when the heaven was dark and he was rising early, as parsons do, he forgot he was getting up, but supposed he was going to bed, took off the clothes which he had that moment put on and then retired, as though it were night and not day. But, with it all, he was so gentle and charming and had a nature so sweet that his flock forgave his failing with ready hearts, smiled at his errors and said it was 'Parson's way.'"

"Well, one beautiful summer morning, he could not resist the call of the countryside, and, after his early breakfast, he set out afoot to prove the lively beauty he loved so well and draw from it a sermon such as no books could give. For the following day was Sunday . . . As though upon air, he roamed for mile upon mile. Of course he forgot all else: and of such was his communion that he forgot all time. In fact, it was past two o'clock, and he had covered the best part of 15 miles, when he climbed a stile in a hedgerow, to find a man in the road, with a watch in his hand. And the man was watching a chauffeur changing a tire—or, rather, trying to change it, for the car had detachable rims, and, because of the heat of the day, the metal had expanded and the rim had seized on to the wheel.

"At once the Vicar perceived the state of the case. The man, who was wearing full dress, was clearly due at some function, for the chauffeur was needing assistance to pull off the rim: but the other dared not give it, because of his clothes.

"Without so much as a word, the Vicar went down on his knees in the dusty road—not to pray, but to add his strength to that of a fellow man. And after a moment or two, before their united endeavors, the soon as they moved, the Vicar got his bearings, only to find that they were approaching the village of which he was priest. At the sight of the distant spire, his memory suddenly stirred.

"Dear, dear," he cried. "I'd forgotten. I shan't be able to come. You must set me down at that village. I've got a wedding myself."

"At that village?" cried the other. "But that is where I'm to be married—in ten minutes' time."

"The Vicar smiled his rare smile. 'Make it twenty, my friend,' he said gently. 'You must give me time to change.'"

"So they brought one another to church—the priest and the groom, for, had they not met as they did, neither the one nor the other could have arrived."

There was a moment's silence.

Then the Duchess of Whelp shook her head.

"Too good to be true," she said, "as I'll lay the Count will agree."

"Madam," said the Count, "I am with you. And who ever heard of a—"

"God in heaven!" cried Herrick, and started up to his feet. His eyes were upon the Count, and the Count was staring back, with the eyes of a beast at bay.

So for a long moment . . .

"What then?" said Old Harry, sharply.

Herrick put a hand to his head.

"But he's denied it," he cried, and looked dazedly round. "And I

Strange Things Happen to Vessels at Sea During Storms and in Accidents

During a hurricane in the Caribbean, in 1906, a British tramp steamer, the Dorisbrook, was caught by what her crew described as a tidal wave. They said it must have been nearly 100 feet high, and that the big steamer was carried on its summit like a chip in a mill race. At last she stopped with a bump, and when daylight came she was in a pine forest more than 200 yards from the beach, reports a writer in London Answers Magazine.

A dock was dug around her and a canal to the sea. She was refloated and went under her own steam to Galveston, where she was repaired. In the following February she delivered her cargo safely in London.

Extraordinary things happen at sea, but perhaps nothing harder to believe than the fate of the large wooden schooner, Fred B. Taylor, She was run down by a steamer in the Atlantic and cut in two. Her crew was saved. The bow half drifted to Delaware bay, on the American coast; the stern came ashore on Ascension island, 4,500 miles away.

One more story almost equally strange. The British steamship

Mercedes, laden with iron ore, was off Newfoundland, when caught in a severe electric storm. The whole ocean was like an endless stretch of prairie fires and balls of electric fire hissed and exploded in all directions among the vessel's masts and rigging. A heavy gale sprang up, and the heavily laden ship was badly damaged.

As the gale died out the fireballs appeared again, great "composants" which hung in big globes from the masts and stays and turned night into day. By their light repairs were effected which enabled the vessel to reach port.

Origin of Whist

The origin of whist, like many card games, is obscure, but under the name of "triumph" it had become so well known that when Bishop Latimer preached the Christmas sermon at Cambridge in 1529 he had no doubt that his hearers could follow his allegories based upon it. Its first serious study and the formation of set rules regarding play resulted from frequent meetings of a party of whist players at the Crown Coffee house in Bedford Row, London, of whom Edmond Hoyle was one.

THE SACREDNESS OF HUMAN LIFE

LESSON TEXT—Exodus 20:13; Matthew 5:21-26, 38-42.

GOLDEN TEXT—Thou shalt not kill.—Exodus 20:13. Whosoever hateth his brother is a murderer.—1 John 3:15.

Lesson subjects and Scripture texts selected and copyrighted by International Council of Religious Education; used by permission.

The sanctity of human life finds its foundation in the fact that God created man in His own likeness and image. Because that is true no man has any right to take the life of another for any cause except at the direct command of God. Only by the protection of society and in accordance with the Word of God may there be any such action by man toward man. Both of these truths are declared in Scripture in God's covenant with Noah (Gen. 9:5, 6), which was made possibly a thousand years before the Ten Commandments were given to Moses.

Life is held rather cheaply in our day. Nations count their boys and girls as only so much "war material." Life is destroyed on the highway, in the shop, or in the home. Let us declare again the solemn command of God, "Thou shalt not kill."

I. The Prohibition of Murder (Exod. 20:13).

The word "kill" in this commandment is one which means a violent and unauthorized taking of life, and is therefore more properly translated "murder." Not all killing is murder. A man may kill another entirely accidentally, or he may be the duly constituted legal officer carrying out the law of the land in taking the life of one who has forfeited his right to live because he has slain another. There is also the right of self-defense, be it individual or collective. But these are the only exceptions; let us not attempt to justify any other.

Murder is too prevalent in our land. In 1936 there were 13,242 outright killings—a murder every 40 minutes. The head of the United States secret service estimates that there are 200,000 persons at large in our land who "have murder in their hearts and who will take human life before they die." Also in 1936 there were 37,800 deaths in automobile accidents. Some of these were by unavoidable accidents, but many were really murder because the one responsible drove with defective brakes, dangerous tires, or while he was intoxicated. Add to these the deaths in industry caused by failure to provide proper safeguards or healthy working conditions, and by the exploitation of child labor, and we say again, that we should cry aloud, "Thou shalt do no murder."

II. The Cause of Murder (Matt. 5:21, 22).

The Sermon on the Mount, from which the rest of our lesson is taken, while it "describes the character of the citizens of the earthly kingdom which the Messiah came to set up" and "assumes a class of people already saved, regenerated, and in fellowship with their King" (James M. Gray), does provide fundamental principles for the guidance of the Christian.

In this matter of murder, Jesus cuts right through the outward aspects of the matter and points out that an angry hatred in the heart is the root of all murder. If we hate, we have murder in our hearts. Circumstances may hinder its fulfillment, but the danger is always there until we remove the cause. Just being angry—calling our brother "Raca" (the modern equivalent of which is "nobody there"), and calling him "thou fool," which classifies him as "morally worthless"—these are the three dreadful downward steps to murder. And they begin in anger. May God help those of us who have strong feelings that we may not yield them to the devil in such anger against our brother!

III. The Prevention of Murder (Matt. 5:23-26, 38-42).

Prevention with God means more than putting up a barrier to keep us from killing. He deals with the heart, and thus puts the whole life right. It is not even a question of how we may feel against our brother. If he has aught against us we are to do all we can to win him. He may be unreasonable, grasping, and unfair. However, the spirit that will win him is not that of retaliation or sullen submission to the inevitable, but rather a free and willing going even beyond what is required.

The full interpretation of this passage is not possible in our limited space. It is clear from other scriptures that it does not mean that wicked and unscrupulous men are to be permitted to defraud and destroy God's people. At the same time, we must not explain away the heart of our Lord's interpretation of this great commandment. Let us seek His grace that we may, like Him, silence by our loving deeds and words even the bitter gainsayers of the gospel.

AROUND THE HOUSE

Care of Book.—Never bend a book backward to keep it open. That weakens the back strap so that the leaves will fall out. Use a book mark or put a small weight on one corner of the book to keep it open.

Mending the Wringer.—If a crack appears in the rubber roller of your wringer, bind the cracked part tightly with adhesive tape. It stops the crack from spreading and it does not come off.

Broken Glass.—Use a wet cloth or dampened absorbent cotton to pick up broken glass. Even the tiniest bits will adhere to it. For safety, discard cloth and all.

To Clean Chromium.—Chromium plated household fittings should be kept clean by frequent dusting with a soft cloth. If dirty, wipe with a cloth wrung out in warm water and then dry thoroughly with a soft duster. Or try wiping with a rag moistened with paraffin.

On Heat Appliances.—Lamp sockets and cords waste electricity and deteriorate rapidly when used with heat appliances. If the cord on the toaster or electric iron gives out, a new cord suited to that piece of equipment will save current and possibly a serious accident.

Repelling Mice.—The smell of peppermint is most obnoxious to mice. A little oil of peppermint placed about their haunts will soon make them look for other quarters.

Renewing Leather.—Since the natural oils in leather slowly dry out and may cause it to crack and look parched, leather coverings on furniture should be treated occasionally to a slight dose of oil—neat's foot is excellent and inexpensive for this purpose. Be sure that it is well rubbed into the pores of the leather, and then polish the surface with a clean cloth.

Vinegar Cures Rust.—Don't waste time trying to clean rusty articles with emery paper! Place them in a jar of ordinary vinegar, leave for a couple of days, and you will find that they are quite free from rust.

Like lemons, Luden's contain a factor that helps contribute to your alkaline reserve. I prefer Luden's.

Watch Your Kidneys!

Help Them Cleanse the Blood of Harmful Body Waste

Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as Nature intended—fail to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery.

Symptoms may be nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of pep and strength.

Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder may be burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

There should be no doubt that prompt treatment is wiser than neglect. Use Doan's Pills. Doan's have been winning new friends for more than forty years. They have a nation-wide reputation. Are recommended by grateful people the country over. Ask your neighbor!

Fashions for Daytime That Are Flattering

EACH of these good-looking new designs is just as comfortable and practical as it is becoming, and each is accompanied by a detailed sew chart that assures you no difficulty at all in the making.

Dirndl-Style Jumper.

High neckline, to cover up her collar bones, with a little round collar to soften. High-puffed sleeves and very full skirt to fill her out. Shirred waistline, to make her look soft and small through the middle. Those are the details making this one of the most becoming dresses a girl of the fast-growing years can possibly wear. Make the jumper of flannel, jersey or wool plaid, for every day, with linen, batiste or flat crepe blouse. Repeat it, for parties, of velvet, with organza or chiffon blous.

Large Woman's House Dress.

Plenty of leeway for reaching up, down and under, is promised you by the ample armholes, slight blouse above the belt, and easy waistline of this practical home dress. And it looks very trim and tailored, because the long lines, the darts around the middle, scalloped closing and narrow collar are just as slenderizing as they can be. You will enjoy having a jersey or challis version of this dress for cold weather, as well as several in calico, gingham or percale. It's a diagram design that you can make in no time.

No. 1621 is designed for sizes 8, 10, 12, and 14 years. Size 10 requires 1 1/2 yards of 54-inch material for the skirt and 1 1/4 yards of 39-inch material for the blouse.

No. 1624 is designed for sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48, 50 and 52. Size 38 requires 4 1/2 yards of 35-inch material. Contrasting collar takes 1/2 yard; 3 yards braid.

Fall and Winter Fashion Book. The new 32-page Fall and Winter Pattern Book which shows photographs of the dresses being worn is now out. (One pattern and the Fall and Winter Pattern Book—25 cents.) You can order the book separately for 15 cents.

Send your order to The Sewing Circle Pattern Dept., Room 1020, 211 W. Wacker Dr., Chicago, Ill. Price of patterns, 15 cents (in coins) each.

A Three Days' Cough Is Your Danger Signal

No matter how many medicines you have tried for your common cough, chest cold, or bronchial irritation, you may get relief now with Creomulsion. Serious trouble may be brewing and you cannot afford to take a chance with any remedy less potent than Creomulsion, which goes right to the seat of the trouble and aids nature to soothe and heal the inflamed mucous membranes and to loosen and expel germ-laden phlegm.

Even if other remedies have failed, don't be discouraged, try Creomulsion. Your druggist is authorized to refund your money if you are not thoroughly satisfied with the benefits obtained. Creomulsion is one word, ask for it plainly, see that the name on the bottle is Creomulsion, and you'll get the genuine product and the relief you want. (Adv.)

How Women in Their 40's Can Attract Men

Here's good advice for a woman during her change (usually from 38 to 52), who fears she'll lose her appeal to men, who worries about hot flashes, loss of pep, dizzy spells, upset nerves and moody spells.

Get more fresh air, 8 hrs. sleep and if you need a good general system tonic take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made especially for women. It helps Nature build up physical resistance, thus helps give more vivacity to enjoy life and assist in calming jittery nerves and disturbing symptoms that often accompany change of life. Patriotism does not consist in waving banners, or wearing uniforms, or belonging to societies, or denouncing other lands, or waxing eloquent about God's own country. It consists rather in exemplifying in the twentieth century, the ancient truth that "righteousness exalteth a nation; but sin is a reproach to any people." —Dr. Mary E. Wooley.

TINLEY LEGION NOTES

The American Legion Post No. 615 met Tuesday evening and enjoyed a very harmonious session.

A subject of utmost interest to all patriotic organizations and all Americans, as well, was taken up. It was, the subversive individuals who come from foreign shores to this great nation of ours, because of our freedom from spies, speech, press, control of living, monarchies and dictators. Many of these aliens, after arriving here immediately begin trying to reform our government by patterning after their old form of government which they discarded to come here, but either due to foreign pay or racial ties, fail to become good Americans.

A resolution passed recently by the Eighth District of Illinois, American Legion, was that, American born children of aliens, who have no thought of the United States, are who are instructed in all sorts of "isms" to overthrow our government should be placed in concentration camps until such time as they become good and useful citizens by instruction or discipline.

Or Americanism Chairman Wolf, reported the fact that Armistice Day, Nov. 11 has been made a National holiday, as July 4th etc. Those working should contact their employees for that day off.

American Legions are holding celebrations through out the United States on this day which is recognized as Veterans Day. Our Jubilee dance was a huge success. The writer was asked by several parties, when we would put on another affair which will be in the future, so watch for it. Tinley Park Legion extends a welcome to all, when that event comes and at the same time wishes to thank all who helped put our dance over, by attending or working on committees.

Celebrate Armistice Day!
Boyd H. Carr, Pub. Ch.

Sometime during last Sunday morning a passing automobile on Oak Park avenue, struck a small pebble, hurling it across the street, striking a large window in the Schultz Apparel Store, adjoining the Royal Blue Store, knocking a hole in the window. Shortly afterward, a wild-cat story got into circulation to the effect that passing gun men had fired at the window. Soon another version was, that some of the customers had a narrow escape from the sizzling bullets whizzing by. All this is very amusing to Mr. and Mrs. Schultz who had no knowledge of any gun men being anywhere in Tinley Park. The fact was, that the window was broken, but what car caused the damage, is not known.

Brown Campbell Jr., broke his right arm in a fall one day last week. G. Dini, H. F. Bruggemann and Walter Mancke have gone on a hunting trip to Cairo, Ill. They expect to return the end of this week.

The Tinley Park Postoffice remained closed Friday in observance of Armistice Day this being the first time that this occasion has been observed as a national holiday.

Fred Meyers residing in the east end of town, reported, that chicken thieves visited his place some time Tuesday night and stole 30 of his best chickens. No trace of the thieves or chickens have been found.

August Mesenbrink has been ill and confined to his home the past week. His condition remains about the same.

Fred Kollman of Oak Forest, widely known throughout the Tinley Park territory, figured in a serious automobile accident in Blue Island last Monday, in which he sustained a broken leg.

The RNA held their social meeting Tuesday with 51 members being present. The hostesses were: Neighbors: Anna Mesenbrink, Dorothy Aikens, Edith Arnold and Carol Strasburg. Gingerbread with whipped cream and hot coffee were served which was greatly appreciated by all as it was a cold night. Six new members were initiated in the secret work of the RNA.

The fifth night of the Pinochle Tournament was held November 3rd. The leaders are as follows: A. Wolak, N. Brehm, Hilda Johnson, Russell Gunn, M. Israel, A. Jahmarck, P. Jahrmack, Art Johnson, and D. Hartman, Thursday night November 10 will finish the tournament.

John E. Swisher was called to Palisade, Colo., last Tuesday morning November 1st, by the serious illness of his mother, who passed away shortly before his arrival.

TINLEY PARK WOMAN'S CLUB ACTIVITIES

Tinley Park was represented at the Regional Institute of Northern Illinois, October 27 by Mrs. Frank Baldwin, Mrs. L. Bruder, Mrs. Walter W. Kester and Charles Nielsen. The meeting was presided over by the Illinois Federation of Women's clubs. Mrs. Bruckner gave a nice report of the Herald-Tribune Forum held recently in the city of New York. The afternoon was an opportunity to attend department conferences.

Brainard Women's club was hostess to the first District meeting of the year held November 1 at Ridge Park Field House. The principal speaker of the morning was Mr. Joseph M. Artman on Religious Education. Music and movies were ably presented by a representative of the B. and K. Productions.

In the afternoon Dr. Morris Fishbein spoke on the Adjusting Democracy for Public Welfare. Dr. Fishbein is not in favor of socializing medicine unlimitedly. He thinks too much government interference a disadvantage to all concerned. The program "Long May It Wave" by Mrs. E. H. Elwood was lovely. It had its beginning with the Viking Flag and came step by step down through the years. The flags and the story was romance to a superlative degree.

There was a panel discussion on civil service legislation.

Twelve Tinley Park club women attended this District meeting. Mrs. Harry J. Beggs, Mrs. L. G. Bruder, Mrs. E. Brown Campbell, Mrs. Wallace J. Combs, Mrs. Rene Guindon, Mrs. Walter W. Kester, Mrs. Walter Mesenbrink, Mrs. Dennis B. Murphy, Mrs. Chas. Nielsen, Mrs. M. J. Rensink, Mrs. Wm. Schellhase Jr. and Mrs. Chas. H. Wolf.

The Tinley Park club had the very great pleasure of welcoming into the club at its October meeting twelve new members. Mrs. Wesley Bennett, Mrs. L. V. Bacon, Mrs. Harold Bartholomew, Mrs. Walter Eichelberg, Mrs. Fred Goebel, Mrs. Anna Hirsch, Mrs. Chas. James, Mrs. James Keeler, Mrs. Walter Mesenbrink, Mrs. Harry Mager, Mrs. Edmond Moss, Mrs. Chas. Wallin. The membership chairman of the local club, Mrs. John Swisher Sr. made formal presentation of the group and those present took a bow.

Mrs. W. W. Kester and Mrs. R. C. Hannum attended a third District meeting of the Literature Department on Friday, Nov. 4 at the home of Mrs. E. R. Walter in Beverly Hills. Mrs. Walker Past state Literature chairman spoke on Creative Writing. Mrs. Walker stressed current trends in American Short stories. "There is a certain free form now that has come about in the last two decades. Some stories only give an impression, substance and form are the telling qualities. To select and put together with vitality should make a readable story".

There was an interesting exchange of ideas and plans. Tea was poured by Mrs. Walters. It was a profitable occasion.

The Garden department of the Women's club met Tuesday Nov. 8, with Mrs. Chas. Crist.

Last year all of the meetings were held in the home of the chairman, Mrs. Frank Baldwin. The plan this year is to meet in the different homes. Part of the members will act as hostesses and part will prepare the programs. Mrs. Albert Koehler had charge of the program at Mrs. Crist's. Her subject "Flower Show Judging" was ably presented. Very enjoyable and instructive. Mrs. Koehler welcomed the old and new members for Mrs. Baldwin who was unable to attend herself because of illness.

The tea table was a beautiful picture. A fruit centerpiece, open faced sandwiches, with choice colorful dishes. Lovely.

IMPORTANT NOTICE

Wednesday, Nov. 16 is the second meeting of the year, a guest day because Dr. Bertha Shaeffer is the principle speaker. Dr. Shaeffer is Illinois State Social Hygiene Chairman of the PTA. Also Director of Social Hygiene League of Illinois. Her subject next Wednesday is Social Hygiene. Club day begins at 10:30 a.m. with Better speech class. If you can arrange to bring sandwiches for yourself and remain to lunch. Coffee is served. Business meeting at 1:30 p.m.

A program of music at 2:00. The guest speaker, Mrs. Thomas Gifford, Third district president and our public school faculty are honored guests. Hostesses Mrs. Campbell, Mrs. Cross, Mrs. DeVal, Mrs. Koehler, Mrs. Mesenbrink, Mrs. Ruppert and Mrs. Zobebe.

History is his specialty but not all of his articles deal with historical subjects. He also writes on popular science, on literature and the fine arts and on many other subjects of current interest. Winter Arrives—Officially

Though snow has long since fallen in the northern United States, old man winter makes its official debut on December 22, staying with us until the vernal equinox on March 21. To celebrate the occasion, Eugene Barton executes a skillful Christiana atop Old Baldy in Lassen Volcanic national park, California.

Bugle Calls

By Zeb Potter

With the winners winning and the losers losing, we know the results of the voting of November 8. Whatever way you look at it, this country needs two good strong major political parties. A one party set-up is bad in that the people do not profit from the cleansing effect of competition for public office.

Democracy, a free governed people not pushed around by dictators, is still our ideal. To make democracy work we must allow for differences of opinion on public affairs. Both parties have good and able men, and some not so good.

You don't enjoy seeing a one sided football game, score fifty-six to nothing. A one sided government either is not so good. When you vote the man and not the party to the best dictates of your conscience, then you are serving your country best. Intelligent voters with courage to face the facts and with an interest in public affairs, local, state and national, is what we need on the job at all times. Otherwise it is a rift toward dictatorship.

Are you "bucking the dice" in the game of life? Are you overanxious to succeed to have all the good things come your way immediately? My friend you are making a big mistake and I am not preaching to you, but sound psychology. A man has two minds, conscious and subconscious. You might say they are like the first floor and the basement of the house. The conscious mind is active during our waking hours. Psychologists point out that a better job of thinking is done by the subconscious mind when we are relaxed.

Up to 1929 the eve of the big depression we rushed hither and thither pushing the other fellow around trying to get rich quick. Now the teachings of psychologists point out the necessity of taking it easy in dealing with other people. The harder you push intelligently and softly with your subconscious mind. You will get there, and get what you want.

"Life is full of tensions. Most of them come from the pull we exert in trying to get more of the good things of life. We pull to get; then we develop tensions of envy against those who pull more successfully than we can; tensions of hate against those who we think hinder us in our pulling; and tensions of misunderstanding against those who do not pull according to what we consider the orthodox, approved method of pulling."

Were you to ask me to name the kind of news for which the people yearn, I surely must reply that it is the details of a contest—a fight whether between men or dogs or armies.

IN MEMORIAM

JOHNS H. HERMAN—In sad and loving memory of my dear husband who passed away one year ago, November 7, 1937.

Day by day the number lessens,
Year by year they slip away,
To the unknown land far distant,
In the realms of endless day.

But we hold Him in sweet memory,
For we know he is not dead;
To the heavenly land eternal
He's just gone away ahead.

And ere long we know we'll meet him
In the realms of endless day,
When our tasks on earth are finished,
And, like him we've gone away.

Great and many the reunions
In the "Land of Yet to Be";
Where there'll be no separations
Throughout all eternity.

Brilliant Chicago Auto Show Set For Opening Saturday

Pace setter of the nation, the 39th annual Chicago Automobile Show, outstanding for brilliance, originality and completeness, will make its bow to the public Saturday, November 12 in the International Amphitheater, Halsted and Forty-third streets. It will continue daily, including Sunday, through a week from Saturday, the hours being 11 A. M., to 11 P. M.

Upholding and enhancing the reputation of the Chicago Automobile Trade Association for startling innovations, the executive show committee has provided much that is new and scintillating as a setting for and glorifying of, the 1939 products of motordom.

The show itself gives the only opportunity of the year for the public to see, inspect and compare all that's new in this great industry under one roof.

On view will be every make of American-built motor car for 1939, leading makes of trucks and trailer coaches, late model used cars, and a wide variety of accessories and education features. In addition to automotive manufacturers, the Illinois Highway Department, Illinois Commerce Commission, Chicago Park District and Mayor Kelly's Keep Chicago Safe Committee will be represented.

The entire amphitheater will be alive with animated displays that fascinate.

The featured spectacle in the central arena, flanked by seats for 10,000 spectators, will be "An Age of Wheel Prints", produced by John Ross Reed and depicting vividly the evolution of transportation from the close of the Civil War to the present.

The swiftly moving spectacle, with orchestra accompaniment under direction of Peter Cavallo, Jr., will be presented on a stage at the west end of the arena, and amid a Colonial garden setting with a Monticello type home as the background. Spectators will be carried through the "horse and buggy", the "Gay Nineties", and the various motor car eras, culminating with the introduction of the 1939 models of each passenger car make and with a tribute to the industry's pioneers.

During the interlude there will be participation by "nationality queens" eleven countries, namely, Poland, Hungary, Czechoslovakia, Italy, Yugoslavia, Norway, Germany, Lithuania, The Netherlands, Greece, and Denmark.

Other highlights of the show will be the "Hall of Science", a cooperative effort of manufacturers with the central arena as its locale; the Used Car Show and Sale in the north wing of the first floor, a feature presented for the first time in connection with a major automobile show, and the Automobile Book of the Year 1939, containing articles by leaders of the industry, talking points, specifications and prices of all the 1939 motor cars, and other invaluable data.

The scale of admission, it is announced, will be 40 cents up to 4 P. M., 55 cents, including tax, thereafter, and 25 cents at all times for children 12 years of age or under.

Serving on the executive show committee are S. L. Davis, Hupmobile, chairman; H. T. Hollingshead, Nash, ex-officio as president of the Chicago Automobile Trade Association; V. C. P. Dreiske, Cadillac-La Salle; M. J. Lanahan, Dodge-Plymouth, and J. J. Wright, Ford-Mercury-Lincoln. The Hall of Science committee is made up of W. J. Dean, Chevrolet; P. B. Smithson, Packard and L. S. Snow, Ford-Mercury-Lincoln. Making up the Used Car Show and Sale Committee are F. H. Yarnall, Ford-Mercury-Lincoln; F. W. Patterson Sr., Oldsmobile and R. A. Burnstone, Chrysler-Plymouth. The Automobile Book of the Year Committee includes K. K. Kenderline, Buick; W. C. Stanlik, Pontiac, Ben T. Wright, Ford-Mercury-Lincoln and F. M. Miller, Buick.

Preparations are being made to handle a record crowd during the show. The exposition grounds have free parking space under protection for 8,000 automobiles and five new entrances to the amphitheater will be opened for the convenience of visitors.

PALOS PARK

Palos Park P-T-A of the Palos school, District 118, invites you to join them in their merry making event, which is a hay rack party and barn dance, which will be given on Friday evening, November 11th, at 6 o'clock at Ruth's Riding Stables on Route 54, one half mile west of Southwest highway.

Dancing, entertainment, hay rides and refreshments. Whatta evening. The "Rhythm Boys" (with Gus Johnson as drummer) will furnish the music for any popular swing with rhythm.

The hay rack rides will be half hour rides through the village and will be given between intervals. Remember the last time you went on a hay rack party? Wasn't that fun? Here is your chance to see Palos in the dark.

Seemingly the formal tuxedos and Sunday go-to-meeting clothes will be omitted, but, gingham dresses, overalls and garden duds will be right in line with the occasion.

Mrs. William Homerding and Mrs. Martin Olson make up the committee for the tickets, which have been distributed to members of the P-T-A.

The Ways and Means committee has Robert Harkness as chairman. Other members of the committee are: Mr. and Mrs. Robert Harkness; Mr. and Mrs. Logan Furry; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Firalyo; Mr. and Mrs. William McMahon; Mr. and Mrs. Walter Massey; Mr. and Mrs. Frank Itzel; Mr. and Mrs. Martin Olson; Mr. and Mrs. William Homerding; Mrs. Ben Hyink; Mrs. Thomas Clark and Mrs. Bertelheim.

Proceeds from the event will be used to benefit the school activities of the P-T-A. Everyone is invited.

The Southwest District of the Chicago Council of the Boys Scouts of America are having their annual meeting and banquet at Hamilton Park, 72nd and Normal, on November 17th at 6 p. m. The Palos Boy Scouts of Troop 699 have received invitations to attend the banquet.

"Review the Yearling" will be the topic discussed at the next literary discussion meeting which will be at the Palos Park WPA library on November 16. Mrs. Alfred S. Pashley will lead the discussion.

Illinois State Beekeepers Association will hold their 48th annual convention at the St. Nicholas Hotel in Springfield, Ill., on Friday and Saturday November 11 and 12. Several members of the Cook-DuPage Beekeepers are planning to attend the convention. Mr. Adam Bodenschatz of Lemont, Illinois is president of the Illinois State Beekeepers Association and a member of the Cook-DuPage Beekeepers Association, a local organization for beekeepers in Cook and DuPage counties. Miss Shirley Jungles, The Little Yodeling Cowgirl also of Lemont, will take part in the program.

Armistice Day 1938

By RAYMOND PITCAIRN

At the Arc de Triomphe, in Paris, where rises the undying flame. . . . At the Cenotaph, in London, where black-veiled women weep. . . .

At the Memorial Amphitheatre, in Arlington, where sleeps our Unknown Soldier. . . .

At these and many other shrines sacred to the memory of hero dead, the world once more pays reverent tribute.

For again we observe Armistice Day—this year on its twentieth anniversary. Again we honor the men who died in the hope that they were making the world a happier place in which to live.

To the young this celebration may mean much or little. But to millions of older men it brings each year more poignant emotions. Not only the recollections of gay and sturdy comrades who now sleep in honored graves. Not only disappointment because a brave new world which was to rise from the ashes of holocaust failed, somehow, to materialize. But deeper still, a sense of loss and disenchantment, when the high courage and the high idealism that marked those days is compared with the attitude of many of our leaders today.

Then the men in high places preached a united nation pressing onward to great and noble ends. Now, too many of them preach a message of group and class hatred.

Then we were told that it was the duty and the privilege of citizens loyally to aid and support their nation. Now, from countless political platforms we hear the reverse—that the people should expect the Nation to support them.

Then men strove for leadership on the basis of what they could do for America. Now, too many of them speak only of what they can get for their political supporters.

Undoubtedly these attitudes are temporary. Only the body of the Unknown Soldier is dead and buried. The spirit there represented is eternal. And if this year's celebration serves to bring that spirit more actively into our National life; if the observance recalls to men, in high place or low, the exaltation that comes with true co-operation toward a noble end—then Armistice Day will again have served its great and patriotic purpose.

Red Cross Nurses Aid Million Sick

Red Cross public health nurses made more than one million visits to or on behalf of the sick during the fiscal year 1937-38.

The patients live in mountain communities, on islands off the coast, in isolated swamp regions, and in crowded industrial sections. During the same period the nurses inspected 559,187 school children for health defects in cooperation with local physicians, and gave instructions in home hygiene and care of the sick to 58,754 mothers and young girls.

Conveniently placed, they also maintain up-to-date lists of available doctors and ambulance services pledged in advance to cooperate with Red Cross first aiders in preventing deaths and permanent injuries that so frequently result from automobile accidents.

Mobile first aid units also have been established in cooperation with state highway and police departments, operators of public utility vehicles and others frequenting highways, operators of such units also receiving the prescribed Red Cross courses in first aid.

To cut the number of persons losing their lives through drowning while swimming, the Red Cross has redoubled efforts to train as many persons as possible in life saving methods. During the past year 88,150 persons received certificates upon completion of courses. Since 1914, 884,649 persons have been trained in Red Cross life saving methods, including thousands of persons in CCC camps, beach patrolmen, camp instructors, and school boys and girls.

Carrying the fight onto farms and into homes, a campaign to eliminate accidents caused by careless habits and faulty equipment last year resulted in self-checks being made in 10,000,000 American homes through cooperation of children in school, women's clubs, farm organizations, and other groups. The 3,700 Red Cross chapters and their branches in every county are cooperating in this national effort to end needless pain and suffering resulting from such accidents.

These efforts to lessen such appalling tolls of human lives and usefulness are made possible through memberships in the Red Cross. The annual Roll Call will be held between November 11 and Thanksgiving Day, when all Americans are asked to join or renew their affiliation to ensure continuation of accident prevention measures.

Join the Red Cross Chapter in your community during the Roll Call, November 11 to 24.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

CARTER FIELD

Carter Field speculates on the problem that will face the Democrats in picking a presidential candidate, with special reference to the standing of Bennett Clark . . . The Palestine question creates a new division in the ranks of New Dealers, involving Secretary Hull . . . Wallace in battle to save his farm program.

WASHINGTON.—A convention situation which would compel President Roosevelt to fight for another nomination to prevent the naming of a man, Bennett Clark, who has opposed the White House on such outstanding issues as the Supreme court bill, the government reorganization bill, and neutrality legislation, is considered very likely by many shrewd political observers here.

The Missouri senator is in a very strong position. He won his renomination by an overwhelming majority. Six years ago he defied the utmost efforts of Boss Pendergast's Kansas City machine and won easily. In November a record majority is promised for him, with such normally Republican newspapers as the Kansas City Star preferring him to the G. O. P. nominee.

Senator Clark

As long ago as last winter Sen. Burton K. Wheeler of Montana predicted the probability of Clark's nomination if Roosevelt should fail to score heavily in his purge battle (Clark was one of the nine Democratic senators who opposed the President on the court issue who came up for renomination this year, and every one of them won) and provided also that the President did not take the nomination himself.

Not that Wheeler and Clark always agree on issues, or could be said to belong to the same faction. Far from it. It would be rather difficult to classify Clark in any faction. He is found voting and orating with one group today, and another next week. But, as Wheeler pointed out when he made that year-old prediction, everybody likes Clark. Certainly he has few important enemies.

His nomination, however, would be regarded as little less than tragic by the left wingers in the New Deal. He does not sympathize with their objectives at all. For example, he is strongly against any proposal which would further enlarge the powers of the White House. He is a "reactionary" to most New Dealers and a "liberal" to most conservatives.

There would be a lot of poetic justice in the story if he should be nominated and elected President. Back in the early days of the century practically all liberals and progressives were clamoring for the direct primary for the nomination of senators, governors and presidents. The first convention affected by the preferential presidential primary was that of 1912. Senator Clark's father, Champ Clark, then speaker of the house of representatives, ran in a lot of primaries. He won almost everywhere. Notably he defeated Woodrow Wilson in a series of clashes for popular approval.

The conservatives had not taken the primary idea seriously. For instance, in New Jersey the bosses had not even bothered to enter their choice, so it was won by James E. Martine, by a small vote, despite Martine's utter lack of political strength. The bosses had no thought of paying any attention to the primary, and directed the legislature to name someone else. But Woodrow Wilson, then governor, made the "people's choice" by primary an issue, and forced the election of Martine to the senate. Which incidentally he came to regret later.

But at the Baltimore convention it was a different story. The liberals and progressives fought Champ Clark, the people's choice, tooth and nail, although he had a clear majority of the delegates on ballot after ballot. William Jennings Bryan finally turned the tide to Wilson, making the runner-up in the primaries the victor at the convention. Missouri now thinks the wrong may be righted 28 years later.

New Division in New Deal Ranks Involves Hull

A new and interesting division has occurred in New Deal ranks in Washington, and for the first time there is the possibility that Secretary of State Cordell Hull may be involved in a real factional dispute. This dispute may involve Hull because it is directly concerned with foreign policy. One group thinks that the United States should take a firm stand against religious and racial persecution, as it considers it, and should back up Great Britain in Palestine, but insists, and there comes the real point of difference, that Britain should hold Palestine's door open to immigration of persecuted Jews from Europe.

There was not enough difference to be noticeable on this Palestine question until rumors came that Britain was about to make peace with the Arabs on the pledge that no further Jewish immigration would be permitted. Then there were quick repercussions from surprisingly widely separated groups in this country.

Now it so happens that the one criticism which the left wing element of the New Deal has been making of Secretary Hull has to do, in part, with a question of British foreign policy. It has concerned the Spanish civil war, with the left wingers insisting that the so-called neutrality policy of embargo against belligerents actually helped Franco and hurt the Loyalists.

Hit Hull Over Shoulders Of So-Called 'Career Boys'

Bearing in mind what has happened to everyone who fought Hull in this administration, notably George Peek and Ray Moley, left wingers were a little loath to stick their necks out. So they invariably attempted to fasten all the blame on Sumner Welles, the under secretary of state, and the so-called "career boys" in the department of state, especially as it has always seemed comparatively easy to enrage the public against the "spatted teacup balancers," who "ape the British both in accent and clothes," etc. Actually they were hitting at Hull over the career boys' shoulders.

The campaign, nevertheless, has been carried on persistently, the left wingers "leaking" allegedly interesting incidents of how the wool was being pulled over Hull's eyes to their favorite newspaper writers, and always with Sir Ronald Lindsay, the British ambassador, as the master mind in the strategy, and the teacup balancers the eager stooges.

Be that as it may, the left wingers have reinforcements in their determination to force Cordell Hull's hand, and to insist that the "hands across the sea" business with England must come to an immediate end unless Britain goes down the line for the creating of a political refuge in Palestine for all of Europe's persecuted Jews.

Secretary Wallace Fights To Save His Farm Program

Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace is not only battling to save his farm program in his stumping tour to persuade the Middle-Western farmers that AAA is fine and everything will be all right when controlled production really gets into operation; he is fighting to make it possible for some New Dealer to win the presidency next time without the third-term handicap. Careful study of the election situation by experts forces the conclusion that unless Wallace can vindicate himself and his farm program it will be absolutely necessary for President Roosevelt to take a third nomination—unless he's willing to accept Secretary of State Cordell Hull as a compromise or else permit the Democratic party to name a Garner, a Byrd, a Jesse Jones or someone else who can get the backing of Democrats hostile to the Roosevelt economic policies.

This situation is partly due to the complete failure of the New Dealers to win any state primaries where a strong organization opposed them. Part of it is due to the fact that the magnificent political machine constructed by Jim Farley cannot be controlled by the Corcoran-Cohen-Ickes-Hopkins wing of the party. Most important, however, is the fact that no one is even running in the election this year whose victory would boost the chances of any 100 per cent New Dealer for the presidential nomination with the single exception of Sen. Alben W. Barkley in Kentucky. And Barkley, to the conservative Democrats and many idealistic New Dealers, is anathema since the odors of the WPA campaign machinery grew so objectionable last spring.

Senator Sheppard Busy 'Moving Barkley Down'

Hitherto a regular and almost humble follower of the national Democratic leadership, no matter who was in the driver's seat, Sen. Morris Sheppard of Texas is "moving Barkley down" by his activities as chairman of the campaign expenditures investigating committee.

The senate won't get sufficiently worked up over the report Sheppard is writing (with some special investigators still working) to refuse Barkley permission to retain his senate seat. But on the other hand no one thinks, from the set of Sheppard's jaw, that Barkley will look like presidential timber after Sheppard is finished with him.

Wallace alone of the real New Dealers remains unsmudged, if one eliminates those who simply lack political sex appeal, as for example Harold L. Ickes, Harry L. Hopkins, Robert H. Jackson. Wallace's weakness is the low price of farm staples after six years of operation. His alibi is, of course, that the Supreme court kicked out AAA and left him for two years minus a crop-control program.

WIRED MAGIC . . .

● The telephone on your desk is within reach of 32,000,000 other transmitters. Wires carry pictures, news, even radio!

Behind every telephone switchboard is a confusion of wires and cables, each serving a definite purpose in modern high speed communication.

Prepared by National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.—WNU Service.

IF YOU stand at one end of a football field and shout, your voice will travel to the other end, 300 feet away, in about one-third of a second. But your voice, traveling by telephone, would take less than one-third of a second to travel all the way around the earth.

The electrical waves that are created when you speak into a telephone transmitter have in effect increased the speed of sound nearly 400,000 times.

You can telephone around the world, moreover, without even raising your voice, whereas it takes a good loud shout to be heard even the length of a 300-foot field.

Today, however, even a man with a bad cold can "shout" across an ocean, and the telephone enables him to do it with as much power as if all the millions of people in the United States were standing on the beach and shouting with him.

That is the estimated amount of power given to a single human voice by the amplifiers that launch transatlantic radio telephone conversations out on the air lanes overseas.

Even though it takes the energy of a nation's lung-power to "shout" across the ocean, ears of superhuman keenness are needed to hear even so tremendous a noise when it arrives. For the large amount that starts across the ocean dwindles, after traveling 3,000 miles by radio, to no more than the energy that would fall upon your outspread hands from the north star.

Long Distance Wooing

A man may whisper into a telephone in Washington, and be heard in San Francisco. From London you may say to a girl in Cleveland, "Will you marry me?" and hear her say "Yes" as easily as if she sat beside you in the moonlight. A suitor in London really did propose that way to a girl in Cleveland, and won her, too, though he had to talk half an hour!

Radio telephone connections from the United States bridge enormous distances. The circuit to Australia, for example, consists of a radio channel across the Atlantic, linked with another from London that jumps eastward to Sydney, a distance of 10,600 miles. And when radio transmission is better in the other direction the circuit runs westward from London to Sydney some 14,400 miles.

The longest telephone call you could make from any point in the United States would be from Bay, Calif., to Adelaide, Australia, via New York and London, about 18,000 miles.

Business by Telephone

A manufacturer in Ohio tooted his new two-chime automobile horn over the transatlantic telephone to a prospective customer in England, and landed a big order. A buyer for a New York store who never has been outside the United States makes purchases in half a dozen European countries in a single day.

In the United States, most telephone-minded of all countries, 35,000,000 telephone conversations take place every day. This means, with two people to each conversation, that the daily number of talkers is far greater than the nation's population.

"Out of reach of a telephone" is almost unheard of in this country, with 19,100,000 instruments, or one for every seven people. Of a total of 38,000,000 telephones in the entire world, half are in the United States.

New York city alone has more telephones than all France with a population of nearly 42,000,000. Chicago has more than South America.

On a round desk at the overseas switchboard in New York city are 80 telephone directories from all over the world, in every well-known language, but in appearance very much like the familiar American telephone book—fat ones for London, Paris, Berlin, Tokyo; thinner ones for Rome, Havana, Dublin, Madrid; some, such as those of the Netherlands and Switzerland, containing all the telephone numbers of a nation in a volume or two.

The telephone systems of some 70 countries now are connected by wire or radio to the telephone in your own home. You can telephone to Iceland's icy mountains (but not to Greenland's yet) or India's coral strand, to Chile or Costa Rica, to Palestine or Panama, or Japan.

But conversations are only part of the traffic the telephone wires carry. Few people, perhaps, listening to nationally broadcast radio programs, realize that a large proportion of their radio entertainment comes to them over telephone wires.

Only for a comparatively few miles from the nearest broadcasting station do network programs travel through the air, whereas they may have sped nearly 3,000 miles over a telephone wire before taking to the air at all.

News of nation and world that you read in your favorite newspaper likewise comes over telephone wires

One modern use of wires: The highly sensitive machine that sends pictures across the nation in a few minutes by means of an electric eye which transmits light and dark into impulses.

—carried not by human speech, but by electrical impulses that flash over the wires and with ghostly, unseen fingers type their message on a keyboardless typewriter at the receiving end, more accurately than many a human stenographer. Such is the press teletype, which delivers news, most perishable of all commodities, instantaneously to market. News photographs, too, are sent over telephone wires.

The police teletype flashes news of crime over telephone wires to officers of an entire state and whole groups of states linked in single systems. The largest now includes New York, New Jersey, Connecticut, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Pennsylvania, Delaware and Ohio.

Four men broke into a jewelry shop at Beacon, N. Y. Surprised by local policemen, three escaped in an automobile, heading toward New York city. Alarms were flashed over the Westchester county police teletypewriter system and to New York police.

Telephonic Arrest!

Officers all over the county were on the lookout for them, for the teletype alarm was relayed to police call boxes. At Yonkers a county policeman saw the bandits and waved them to stop, but they opened fire on him. Pursuing them on his motorcycle, he forced their car into a ditch and collared one bandit in a hand-to-hand struggle.

The other two eluded him, commandeered a taxicab and started anew for New York city. But the taxicab itself soon was traced, through a teletype alarm, by New York police, who killed both bandits.

America is the land of bigness and its telephone industry fits into that picture: enough telephone wire in North America to tie the earth to the sun, 93,000,000 miles away, and start us circling around Old Sol like a pebble on the end of a string. Enough telephone poles in the United States to build a solid fence 30 feet high from New York almost to San Francisco. Enough underground conduit for cables to make 15 small tunnels straight through the earth from pole to pole.

HOW TO SEW

by Ruth Wyeth Spears

Here is another free-hand embroidery design that should be as much fun as those in our book. This attractive border is suggested here for a bed jacket. You will have no difficulty in finding a pattern for a jacket as they are quite the thing to wear over sleeveless nighties. Your free-hand border will dress it up for a Christmas gift.

If the jacket is pale pink, the rows of running stitches might be in several tones of rose. The cross stitches could be in deep rose and turquoise blue to simulate flowers. The long and short stitches, shown at A and B, should then be done in apple green. Lines may be drawn with a ruler as a guide to keep the rows straight, and evenly spaced dots may be made to indicate the cross stitches beginning the spacing at the corners of the design.

Are you ready for Christmas; birthdays; and the next church bazaar? Do you turn time into money with things to sell? Mrs. Spears' Sewing Book 2 has helped thousands of women. If your home is your hobby you will also want Book 1—SEWING for the Home Decorator. Order by number, enclosing 25 cents for each book. If you order both books, a leaflet on quilts with 36 authentic stitches will be included free. Address Mrs. Spears, 210 S. Desplaines St., Chicago, Ill.

Undiscouraged by 22-Year Battle, Tom Mooney Again Seeks Freedom

Unaided by Court Appeal, San Quentin's Celebrity Turns to Politics

By JOSEPH W. LaBINE

A month ago, California's Gov. Frank F. Merriam received a telegram from the most distinguished prisoner in his San Quentin penitentiary: Thomas J. Mooney, who landed in jail under life sentence for participation in San Francisco's 1916 Preparedness day bombing.

Said the telegram:

"You have resorted to the time-worn political subterfuge of declining to act (on my plea for pardon) on the grounds that the case is pending in the courts. You are hereby duly notified by me that all court actions on my behalf are now concluded and no other actions are contemplated, and I now not only insist but demand that this outrageous procrastination be ended."

Few prisoners would be in a position to "insist" or "demand," but Tom Mooney has been doing it something like 20 years. His latest ultimatum followed refusal by the United States Supreme court to review the case, but it did not mean that Mooney is disheartened. Instead his hopes now rise higher than ever, first, because the Supreme court has granted Mooney the right to apply for an original writ of habeas corpus; and second, because California Democrats nominated one Cuthbert Olson for governor. Although Mr. Olson did not touch the Mooney dynamite keg during his campaign, he delivered a fiery two-hour plea for Mooney before the legislature last winter. As governor, he might grant what no California chief executive since 1916 has dared grant—a pardon.

Another Dreyfus Case?

Tom Mooney's case, which his sympathizers can compare only with the infamous French Dreyfus injustice, has given certain labor elements and radical groups a cause celebre for 20 years. His story opens with the parade which San Francisco's solid citizens engineered July 22, 1916, in protest against President Wilson's "too-proud-to-fight" attitude. As the parade passed Steuart and Market streets, a bomb exploded and killed 10 people, injuring 50. Tom Mooney has since offered alleged photographic proof that he and Mrs. Mooney were watching the parade from a roof, a mile distant, when the explosion occurred. But he and Warren K. Billings, then a 23-year-old rabid red, were convicted and sentenced to hang. A year later, Gov. W. D. Stephens granted President Wilson's plea for commutation to life sentence. Since then Tom Mooney has been a well-publicized martyr; Warren K. Billings has rested comfortably at Folsom state prison, vanishing into oblivion.

SEE? HERE I AM!—Before California's Supreme Court Referee A. E. Shaw, Tom Mooney points at the famous photograph which allegedly proves he was more than a mile away when a bomb exploded during San Francisco's "Preparedness day" parade in 1916.

In Tom Mooney's favor it may be stated that two of the four witnesses whose testimony convicted him have since repudiated their statements. One, an Oregon cattleman named Frank G. Oxman who claimed to have seen Billings and Mooney at the explosion site, admitted later that he was miles away. John MacDonald, a circus roustabout who testified he saw Mooney and Billings plant the bomb, has likewise backed down. The judge who sentenced him, the jury that convicted him and a series of San Francisco district attorneys have all declared Mooney was railroaded to prison.

So why has he not been freed? Partly because California had just reason to dislike the radical labor element Tom Mooney represented back in 1916. Also because Californians believe the Tom Mooney of 1938 is a dangerous radical who somehow enjoys his role of martyr. And—what is not publicly admitted —because a pardon for Tom Mooney would be tantamount to admitting California's guilt in miscarriage of justice.

Labor in Doghouse

Though Mooney may have a grievance, he is not the knight-on-a-white-horse he pretends to be. As a labor leader trying to make San Francisco streetcar men strike, he jumped into the picture right after the pro-labor McNamara brothers admitted bombing the Los Angeles Times. Not only was he pro-labor, but Mooney also had left-wing radical tendencies. His friend Billings took childish delight in playing with dynamite and was adept at throwing varnish remover on automobiles. These men, thought California, were dangerous to have around. Nor has California changed its mind.

The drum-beating of 20 years leaves things substantially the same. "Free Mooney" has been a standard policy of the American Federation of Labor and other respectable citizens, but the loudest drum-beaters have been Communists. This has not helped the cause, nor has Mooney helped himself by weeping martyr-like before whatever news photographer happened to be within eyeshot. Californians are apt to resent the guest-like treatment he receives at San Quentin.

But if the American people could vote on the "Free Mooney" issue, it is likely that he would emerge from prison tomorrow, a free man. An interesting, but not unexpected phenomenon is that Democrats are as a whole more sympathetic than Republicans. California has thrived without a Democratic governor since the 1880s, but as this is written it is quite likely that a precedent will be set by Cuthbert Olson.

Interference Resented

Californians have also thrived—thank you—without the unskilled interference of outsiders in behalf of Tom Mooney. In 1931 they looked down their sun-tanned noses at New York's Mayor James J. Walker, who came west to plead with Gov. James Rolph for clemency. They suggested politely that Mr. Walker might have remained at home to look after two odoriferous investigations then under way in his own bailiwick.

They felt the same way last year when Minnesota's Farmer-Labor Gov. Elmer A. Benson came to San Francisco and suggested that "a united labor movement" could achieve freedom for Mooney and Billings.

"A united labor movement could not only open for them the prison gates," he pontificated, "but it could see to it that, in the future, those who dedicate their lives to the service of humanity do not meet the same fate that was Tom Mooney's."

California's courts have washed their hands of the mess via A. E. Shaw, special referee for the state supreme judiciary, who summed up the state's official attitude and its open resentment regarding the Prisoner of San Quentin:

"It is established by the preponderance of evidence that the petitioner (Mooney) was not a victim of a frame-up nor was he convicted as the result of any improper act of any kind on the part of the district attorney or any of his assistants, or on the part of any person representing the State of California."

Will Cuthbert Olson think otherwise? Tom Mooney hopes so. © Western Newspaper Union.

WHAT to EAT and WHY

Are Your Children Eating Clean Food? Asks C. Houston Goudiss—Points Out Hazards of Neglected Hand-Washing

By C. HOUSTON GOUDISS

"I DO feed my Johnny correctly," a young mother said to me not long ago. "I give him milk and eggs and vegetables and fruits. And still he has colds! Would you mind telling me just how you reconcile that with all this talk about our newer knowledge of nutrition—and how it helps children to have better health?"

"I don't know," I answered. "But I wonder if it would be convenient for me to meet Johnny?"

"Certainly," she replied. "He'll be home from school in a few moments. He usually stops at the school playground for an hour or two, to play dodge ball with the other boys."

A moment or two later Johnny appeared. And a more grimy little lad I had seldom seen, certainly not outside of a neighborhood such as we sometimes describe as underprivileged! Johnny's hands were dirty. His face was dirty. His knees and legs were streaked with mud. There was a lollipop in his mouth, though he quickly pulled it out when his mother made the introduction.

I could not refuse his hand when he put it forth in a gentlemanly gesture, though I noted that some of its visible soil, and doubtless some unseen germs, were transferred to my own hand during the greeting.

No sooner had we unclasped hands than a tremendous sneeze all but engulfed Johnny. And in spite of his almost adult manner at meeting a stranger, he had not learned to cover his nose and mouth during a sneeze. The lollipop was sprayed with moisture—and germs. Two seconds later, the child put the lollipop back in his mouth and continued sucking it!

And yet his mother could not understand why he had colds!

Contaminated Food

I have pointed out many times that in my opinion, a mother's foremost responsibility is to feed her children a diet that takes into account all the recent amazing discoveries of nutritional science. Only by so doing can she hope to give them a sturdy body with straight bones, strong responsive muscles, a good circulation and sound healthy nerves.

But the parent who permits her offspring to eat with unwashed hands and thus take countless germs into his body with every mouthful of food is scarcely giving that food a chance to build the kind of body and brain every mother desires for her child. On the contrary, she is risking the danger of grave illness. For the micro-organisms which cause 92 out of every 100 deaths from communicable diseases enter or leave the body through the mouth or nose.

Health Linked to Cleanliness

All of us have heard the expression: "Cleanliness is next to Godliness," though to observe some of our school children eating their lunches, one might have reason to believe that both mothers and school boards have forgotten this old copy-book maxim! But it bears remembering, every day and all day. For the writer who said that soap and civilization go hand in hand was not far from the truth. Certainly, soap-and-water cleanliness and good health are inseparably linked, and habits of personal cleanliness are a vital factor in safeguarding children against infections and disease.

We often compare a correct diet to the bricks with which a well-constructed building is erected. But if food represents the bricks with which the edifice of health is built, surely cleanliness is the mortar!

Keeping Everlastingly At It

Most babies are kept clean by their mothers because mothers know that they cannot keep their babies well if they do not keep them clean. If the same careful policy were followed in later childhood, it is almost certain that there would be less illness among children.

Unfortunately, many mothers relax their vigilance the moment their child is ready for school. In some cases, they believe that the child has had sufficient training and can be relied upon; in other instances, they believe, or hope, that further training will be supplied by the school!

A Mother's Job

But the mere fact that a child is old enough to go to school does not make him less of a child.

Nor does it make his mother less of a teacher and guardian. On the contrary, it multiplies her responsibilities!

More than ever the child needs careful supervision of his health habits. For now he is in daily contact with countless other youngsters, from many types of homes. More chances to pick up germs! More chances to disseminate germs should he be permitted to go to school with the sniffles!

Mothers must increase, not decrease their vigilance. They must assume responsibility for the observance of all the habits that safeguard health. These include the daily bath; the daily change into clean clothing; the frequent washing of the hands, and always before eating; the twice-daily brushing of the teeth; regular elimination; regular hours for meals; and the necessary hours for outdoor play and for sleep.

What About the School?

Mothers must remember—and must emphasize to their children—that diseases may often be traced to unclean hands, and to germs sprayed in the air by persons having coughs and colds.

Teach your children to muffle every cough and sneeze in a handkerchief. And be sure they have a handkerchief handy for the purpose. Teach them to keep their fingers out of their mouths, likewise pencils and other objects. Teach them to wash the hands and face frequently.

If they are to carry out this last instruction, it is imperative that soap and towels be available in school washrooms, as well as at home. Investigate conditions at the school your child attends. If facilities are not adequate, do something about it. Either arouse other mothers to help rectify the omissions, or failing that—have your child carry soap and paper towels from home!

By teaching cleanliness to your children, by making it a regular part of their training, you will help to safeguard their health and the health of every other child with whom they come in contact in their daily lives.

Agassiz Spurned Money

Agassiz, the famous Harvard naturalist, when seized suddenly by some new scientific inquiry, would drop everything to work on it. One day, in the midst of such an inspiration, he was begged by a visitor from another city to come to them for a lecture, entreated, implored and finally offered twice the customary fee. But Agassiz only replied, "I cannot afford to waste my time in making money!"

Pittsburgh C.I.O. Convention To Climax Career of Lewis

John L. Lewis' career as a labor leader will probably reach its climax November 14, when the C. I. O. chieftain steps to the rostrum at Pittsburgh to open his organization's constitutional convention.

It will probably mark the death knell of a long-cherished hope that labor's warring factions—C. I. O. and A. F. of L.—can be brought back into a common fold. For John Lewis will lead his mammoth octopus into a clearly defined, rival organization against that of William Green, A. F. of L. president.

Lewis' rise to power has been sensational, and has furnished another instance of the wife whose perseverance pulled a politically and socially ungraceful husband to a position of power and esteem. In 1908, when Lewis married Myrta Edith Bell, an Iowa school teacher, his education had been confined to 15 years in the coal mines.

Became Union Leader.

The Lewis family settled down at Panama, Ill., where the future C. I. O. chieftain interspersed an ambitious course of reading with leadership in the local coal union. In 1919, reporters covering a bitter strike found him immersed in Homer's Iliad. Overnight he became a powerful orator.

A few years later Mr. Lewis was sent to the Illinois state capitol at Springfield as labor lobbyist, by that time being the best informed man in the industry on wages and working conditions. Under Samuel Gompers' wing he became vice president of the United Mine Workers' union, soon becoming independent enough to run against Gompers for president of the A. F. of L.

The "vertical" type of union organization Lewis began championing called for organization of all workers in the same industry into one union, as opposed to the A. F. of L. idea of organization by craft. Lewis' independence started with the New Deal, and under NRA his union gained 200,000 members to form the nucleus for C. I. O. In 1935, at the Atlantic City A. F. of L. convention, he fought with Mr. Green, poked a vice president in the jaw and walked out.

Ambitious to organize all industries on the "vertical" plan, he has succeeded remarkably to date, much to A. F. of L.'s concern. At the recent federation convention in Houston the hope for peace was raised once more, only to be ground underfoot as the conservative Green organization voted a war chest to fight C. I. O. Now, his last hope for a victorious peace shattered, Lewis has called C. I. O. members to Pittsburgh to perfect a permanent opposition body. With this he hopes to expand the organization plan that has revolutionized labor thought in the past decade. Already safely entrenched in such industries as automobiles, steel, glass, coal and rubber, he believes that in time C. I. O. will swallow completely the more conservative A. F. of L.

"ORPHANS OF THE STORM"

Fleeing a tornado near Clyde, Texas, parents of these babies were killed, their automobile tossed a quarter-mile away. Hours later a telephone lineman heard a child's whimper in a roadside ditch. There he found 3-year-old Jesse Donald Rutledge, water up to his chin, holding his 3-month-old brother Daryl's head above water. Relatives being unable to care for the orphans, Red Cross workers arranged a maintenance fund to support them until they are 16. A Texas college promised scholarships and ranchmen started a herd of cattle for their benefit. The Red Cross will help the boys make adjustments as they grow older.

MOKENA

Ernest Lehnert of Mokena reports that corn thieves have been husking corn in his field by night and hauling it away.

Miss Evelyn Wachter who is a contestant in a walkathon in the Coliseum in Chicago, was heard on the radio Thursday evening, speaking from the Coliseum.

A miscellaneous shower was given by Mrs. Albert Cappel in her home in Mokena last evening in honor of Miss Bernice Mueller whose approaching marriage to Glenn Schroeder of Frankfort has been set for November 20. About sixteen guests were present. The bride to be received many beautiful gifts.
